MORE LOCAL MONEY NEEDED FOR SCHOOLS AS STATE PAYS LESS

Much has already been said about the failure of the last Maine legislature to enact any new legislation to aid towns in the increasing costs of education. What most people at the time (and now) did not realize was that in order for the State to meet its former financial obligations to towns for education, more funds would be needed. This was foreseen by the heads of the Department of Education and legislators were informed, but a majority of the legislators could not agree on any new tax measure to supply these funds. The cry was that expenses would have to be less and that it was a good time to "hold the line."

Time is telling! This year the number of teachers has greatly increased. Also the school tax rate of many towns has increased, requiring a greater State subsidy per teacher. These two items are the chief factors contributing to about a four hundred thousand dollar shortage in the State School Fund. The only thing to be done was done. State funds to towns were decreased all down the line. The average reduction figures at about 10%.

This means an unexpected cut of about $1,400.00 to the Town of Bethel. Next year we may expect a further reduction. An estimate of thirteen to fourteen per cent has been made.

Added to this is an unexpected increase in the maximum allowable secondary school tuition charge from $150 to about $180. This will effect nearly all towns not maintaining a high school. To Bethel this will mean an unexpected cost of about $1,300 for the fall term alone. Had the part of this bill requiring more State subsidy been enacted, little or no additional cost would have resulted.

These facts should indicate that costs of education are still increasing and must be expected to increase more so long as there is an increase in enrollment, and so long as we are interested in improving our schools, our community, and our society.

PARENT-TEACHER DRIVE SUCCESSFUL

The Bethel P. T. A. membership drive which the school students carried on, Oct. 20-26 inclusive, was very successful. There are 291 members now enrolled, 104 more than ever before.

Grade two, Mrs. Hazel Wheeler, teacher, won the prize for bringing in the most members and will be given a party in the near future as their award. A prize of $2.00 was offered to the room making the best poster. Due to the clever and appropriate design on the sixth grade poster, Miss Varner's room, and the clever design and amount of work put into drawing the eighth grade entry, Mr. Chapman's grade, the judges decided to call it a tie, and duplicate prizes were awarded.

The posters are on display in the various rooms and the winners will be displayed at the next P.T.A. meeting.

COUNTY POSTMASTERS MET AT NORWAY, OCT. 21

The Oxford County Postmasters held their regular meeting at Stone's Hotel in Norway on Oct. 21. The banquet was served at 7:30 following which the business meeting was conducted. Mrs. Adelaide Lister of Locke Mills, the president, presiding.

The speaker of the evening was Hon. Tennyson Jefferson, chief inspector of the New England states, whose office is in Boston. Mrs. Jefferson was also present. Mr. Jefferson gave a most interesting talk on an inspector's experiences, his previously having taken him all over the United States, and for two years he was stationed in Alaska. He also gave many helpful suggestions whereby postal service could be improved.

Other guests were Hon. James A. MacVicar, acting Postmaster at Portland, Mrs. MacVicar, Asst. P. M. Stevens of Portland, Mr. MacVicar's secretary, Martin O'Brien, Inspector Gabriel Walker, State President Donald L. ## MRS. CLOUGH HONOR GUEST AT MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

It took considerable maneuvering on the part of her family to get Mrs. Frances Clough to attend a "plastic party" at the Community Room Wednesday evening. At last their efforts were successful and about 8 o'clock she arrived to be happily greeted by a gathering of family, neighbors and friends. Mrs. Merle Wheeler escorted the guest of honor to her seat at a long table laden with many gaily decorated bundles and boxes. Surprises and confusion which at first seized her were soon forgotten in the opening and displaying of the beautiful gifts.

Refreshments of coffee, sandwiches and cake were served by Mrs. Merle Wheeler, Mrs. Elsie Moore, Mrs. Maxine Brown, Mrs. Mary Rice and Mrs. Shirley Clough. Those present were Mrs. Frances Clough, Mrs. Abbie Brown, Mrs. Nina Upson, Miss Rachel Brown, Miss Fannie Hodgdon, Mrs. Jennie Coburn, Mrs. Mildred Wilbur, Mrs. Eva Morrill, Mrs. Hilda Donahue, Mrs. Ruth Brown, Mrs. Iva Hutchinson, Mrs. Grace MacFarlane, Mrs. Edith Rowe, Mrs. Barbara Kuzik, Mrs. June Greig, Mrs. Alice Brown, Mrs. Katherine Bennett, Mrs. Nellie Cummings, Mrs. Maude Hunt, Mrs. Peralta Gallant, Mrs. Cecil Reed, Miss Dora White, Mrs. Jeordie Merrill, Mrs. Maudie Hutchinson, Mrs. Mildred Garraway, Mrs. Doris Lord, Mrs. Mary Brown, Mrs. Elizabeth Wheeler, Mrs. Gladys Cross, Mrs. Maxine Brown, Mrs. Shirley Clough, Mrs. Elsie Moore, Mrs. Merle Wheeler, Mrs. Mary Rice, Mrs. Virgie McMillin, Nikki McMillin, Douglas, Donna and Donald Rice. ## GREENVILLE NO MATCH FOR GOULD, LOSE 41-19

Gould Academy had little trouble downing a game but outclassed Greenville High School team here last Saturday. Gould scored in the first period on a near 19 yard dash by Charlie Smith.

Early in the second period the Huskies scored again as Marshall carried 11 yards on a quick starting play. Hamilton booted both goals and the home team led, 14-0. The Lakers then opened up with passes and laterals that Gould could not stop. They scored before the half ended on a 28 yard scoring pass, Cormier to McNorton. Cormier rushed the extra point. After the visitors received a Marshall punt they fumbled on the next play on their own 24 yard line which was recovered by Gould. Just four plays later Gould scored as Boyd crossed the goal from the one foot line. The half ended 21-7 as Hamilton again converted the extra point.

The third period was definitely a Gould period as the Huskies scored twice, one a three yard plunge by Howe and later Klain rounded and for 10 yards and the fifth TD. Hamilton place-kicked the extra point and then passed to Boyd for the second one.

With the second and third stringers playing most of the last stanza the visitors managed to score twice, as their great star, Cormier, could not be stopped. However, two underdogs teamed up to add to Gould's score as Bean passed to Ferguson in the end zone for a 13 yard scoring play.

Highlights of the game were a 58 yard touchdown run by Cormier of the visitors and an 80 yard return of the second half kick-off by Smith, whose TD was nullified by a clipping penalty on the 50 yard line.

GOULD GOES TO FRYEBURG FOR SEASON'S FINALE, SAT.

Gould Academy will take to the road Saturday for their final game of the season. They are scheduled to meet Fryeburg Academy at Fryeburg in a 2:00 p. m. game.

Gould will be fighting to maintain their second undefeated season in a row. Last year Fryeburg nearly did the trick in the third period, but the Huskies put on a final period rally of their own to maintain their record. This year Fryeburg has taken several beatings and I do not appear up to par; but Gould-Fryeburg games are always hard-fought battles regardless of previous records. Coach Scott and his Huskies are going to Fryeburg expecting a real battle.

The Vanishing Rich

It is hard to imagine a society where there will not be some people poor and some people rich. Jesus commented that we "have the poor with us always." If he had been talking about economic systems, no doubt he could have said the same about the rich. Indeed, there has been no variety of economic system able to perpetuate itself that eliminated both the rich and the poor. Perhaps it is an economic law that there shall be people at both ends of the scale.

Some folks have called efforts to eliminate the rich and poor: "redistribution of wealth." It is true that most of the attempts at tinkering with economy include taking from the rich to give to the poor. Whether the poor are thus being eliminated, or even helped, is certainly doubtful. However, it is obvious that in America the rich are rapidly disappearing. You can bid adieu to the vanishing rich.

New Utopia?

Is anybody sorry? There are few mourners. But I can tell you that all of us ought to mourn the passing of the rich. Most of all, the poor will miss them. For what will happen to the idea of redistributing wealth, when there are no rich? Will the Utopia then be here? Will everybody go to work, in order to keep the status quo? Or will somebody get lazy and become poor, while his neighbor works hard and becomes rich? Then redistribute all over again?

These things are interesting possibilities. But the rich are definitely vanishing. An economist of Notre Dame University, Father Keller, has shown that the amount of the national income kept in 1928 by those who had incomes of $25,000 or more, after taxes, shrank from 11 per cent to 22 per cent in 1945. He says these "rich" taxpayers were able to keep only $2 billion in 1945, whereas they had retained $3 in 1928.

Who Pays Taxes?

The Notre Dame economist says further that if the government had taken every bit of the income these "rich" people were able to keep for themselves in 1945, leaving them no income at all, the federal government could have got along on that amount less than three weeks out of the year! That certainly means that somebody besides the rich is paying those tremendous sums that are expended yearly by our government. Who are they? The poor?

Well, our Notre Dame economist shows that the poor were doing considerably better in 1945 than they were in 1923, receiving a larger and larger share of the national income. Those with incomes under $5,000 were able to keep 77 per cent of the national income in 1923 but retained more than 90 per cent of it in 1945. Apparently, then, if taxes are going to be paid in the future the "poor" are the ones who are going to do it!

More Than for Food

There's the fallacy of "soak the rich" tax proposals. These methods won't work, simply because all the national income does not go to the rich! A sad thing it is, that common folks with only food-and-clothing incomes are fooled into thinking that wealthy people pay the taxes. Actually, taxes take nearly one dollar out of every three we earn. We spend more on government than on food. Everybody pays, and pays plenty!

Because the rich are vanishing, more and more taxes will have to fall upon people with moderate and low incomes. A larger and larger proportion of money each person spends will be earmarked to pay the costs of government. There are other reasons why America should want to keep the idea of some folks getting higher incomes than others. Besides the fact that wealthy people can and do pay taxes. But the "vanishing rich" should tell us a few things about taxes and who pays them. You do!

"HOW TO WIN FRIENDS and INFLUENCE PEOPLE"
Be A Good Listener

HERE'S AN EXPERIENCE born of an effort to be a good listener. It was told me by Mary Goodness, Portland, Maine. This is a simple little story, but our lives—yours and mine—are made up mostly of simple little things, and it is the way you handle the simple little things that decides whether you are to be happy or unhappy.

CARNEGIE

Miss Goodness believed that being a good listener was an art in itself but she believed that few people had that ability. And she did not think of herself as one of them. She says she had as an example her own mother who not only listened courteously to others, but she became absorbedly interested in what they had to say, venturing only an "oh" or an "ah" at the proper moment, which seemed always to spur the speaker on. She had often envied her mother this charming trait, but since she felt it was a natural trait in her mother it had never occurred to her that it could be cultivated.

Somewhere along the line she heard a speaker say that this was a trait that not only could be cultivated but that it was not in the least difficult to cultivate it. So she set about finding out for herself.

She took as her objective one certain man whom she always had considered a bore. Getting him to talk wasn't difficult; this he was eager to do, particularly if he himself were the subject. Miss Goodness had in more than one instance talked with him only to find that he was off in a world of his own, paying no attention to what she was saying. At times he would bring his gaze back from the outer world to her to interrupt with some thought of his own, and not always relevant to the subject at hand. It wasn't that he was discourteous, he was just absent-mindedly coming back again, but always with his own interest foremost. Yes, he would be a splendid example for her test.

So she forced herself one day to listen to all he had to say, to listen closely, absorbedly, looking for something in his remarks that would prove truly interesting. Much to her amazement she found him very interesting. Being very well read he had given a great deal of thought to things that many people by-pass entirely.

Says Miss Goodness, "Aside from learning how to listen, and finding out what being a good listener can mean, I made a friend of this person and never has my time been spent to greater advantage than the hour I gave to learning how to be a good listener."

THIS WEEK IN Washington

FOR THE FIRST TIME in a decade, the house has voted an advance in social security coverage to approximately 11 million more workers and almost doubling the benefits. The final vote on the measure was 333 to 14, which is a record and a definite answer to the so-called "welfare state" critics.

House membership which is directly responsible to the people is possibly closer to the grass roots thinking than those who have raised the issue of "statism" and "welfare state."

Although the measure has been passed by only the house, it is most important, since it sets the bill up for consideration by the senate, as is, at the second session of this congress which convenes next January.

What the house bill does is raise benefits from 50 to 150 per cent, or an average of about 70 per cent. For those already retired, the average primary payment goes up from $28 a month to $44. The bill credits veterans with military service time from 1940 to 1947 and lifts the payroll base from $3,000 a year to $3,600, raising payroll tax on both worker and employer to 14 per cent in 1950, 2 per cent in 1952, 2 1/2 per cent in 1953, 3 per cent in 1955 and 3 1/4 per cent in 1970.

Old age payment for those who retire after this year is doubled with a bottom payment of $25 (it's now $10). Top family payment will increase to $150 (now $85). Totally and permanently disabled workers would be paid the same benefits they would draw if old enough to retire.

The new coverage reaches four and one-half million self-employed, four million who work for states and cities, 600,000 in non-profit work and a million house servants. Agricultural processing workers off the farm are included in the bill.

In the meantime, as the congress lashed toward adjournment, this house passed measure was pointed to by administration leaders as a victory for President Truman. The White House issued a summary of accomplishments of the 81st congress in which these measures were listed as carrying out the President's pledges.

1—Revision of the armed forces unification act; 2—Extension of the European recovery program for another year; 3—Extension of the reciprocal trade agreement act without restrictions which the 80th congress attached; 4—Ratification of the North Atlantic treaty; 5—Ratification of the international wheat agreement; 6—Approval of the military assistance program to help non-Communist nations build up their arms; 7—Approval of slum clearance and low cost federal housing; 8—Extension of the federal rent control act; 9—Revision of the commodity credit corporation's charter to allow it to provide storage space for crops held under price support loans; 10—Grant to Mr. Truman of authority to reshuffle the executive branch of the government.

Some of these measures were advocated by Republicans as well as Democrats, but it must be admitted they were a part of the president's program. Where the "Fair Deal" program bogged down most was in the civil rights section including a federal FEPC, anti-poll tax and anti-lynching.

Administration measures which are marked "pending" include universal military training, a national health program with health insurance, the St. Lawrence seaway project, establishment of a Columbia Valley authority, creation of a department of public welfare and tax revision. Other measures, such as repeal of oleo taxes and federal aid to education, have passed one house of congress and are ready for the second session.

Most substantial failure of the administration was the attempted repeal of the Taft-Hartley act and the cold turn-down of the Brannan agricultural program. So confused and split in the farm bloc in congress, however, anything may happen in the second session, with 1950 an election year.

The steel and coal strikes are causing worry to administration leaders. However, with the President committed to an all-out production program and a national income of $200,000,000,000 in the foreseeable future, he will not permit these strikes to plunge the nation into a crippling industrial war.

RED-DOMINATED UNIONS

IT WOULD BE INTERESTING to know what action our government expects to take with regard to Communist-dominated unions in the event of war with Russia. When and if this war comes about, nature will take its course and the American elements in such unions as the United Electrical Workers and the Farm Equipment Workers—plus an enraged populace—will wipe out the Communist members.

But what happens in the meantime? Surely our government is prepared to subdue the potential saboteurs before they can do irreparable injury to such a vital part of our whole system as the electrical field. None of us any longer have to be told that an "American" Communist's first duty is to Russia. The duty to sabotage this country's strength, in the event of war with the Slavs, would be paramount with him. Many of them would sacrifice themselves to the lynch mob if by so doing they could "shine" as Red heroes.

What a terrible dilemma we would find ourselves in if a considerable number of United Electrical Workers followed the Communist line in event of War. Our whole system of defense, and offense, would be paralyzed. Then suppose these persons were liquidated, the industry—which is specialized—would suddenly find itself desperately short of expert labor just when it was most needed.

This is just one small picture in a puzzle which constantly intrigues the American. He believes that the next war will be sudden and victory possibly conclusive within a brief period. It will be that early period in which everything will depend upon the perfect coordination of all our industrial and military machines.

The majority of U.E.W.'s members are doubtless anti-Communist; but this doesn't mean that these members are able to openly organize and oust the Red element. The very life of an advocate of such action might be in jeopardy. The C.I.O. meets in Cleveland in a few days. If the great mass of Americans in that vast union are unable to eliminate the obvious danger which we now face—then the Government must do it.

PAYNE ENDORSES RELIGION IN AMERICAN LIFE CAMPAIGN

Governor Frederick G. Payne recently endorsed the Religion in American Life campaign sponsored by a score of religious organizations with Charles E. Wilson, of New York City, General Electric Company president, as chairman. The campaign has a pre-Thanksgiving objective, the stimulation of constant attendance at the religious institution of one's choice.

Payne said the outstanding purpose of the campaign is to impress upon everyone the importance of religion and religious institutions and to awaken in every individual an awareness of his own responsibility to attend and support the church of his choice.

"At no time in our history," Payne said, "has there been larger enrollment of our people in religious bodies."

"And at no time in our national or state history has there been a more urgent need for an even greater enrollment in those institutions which stabilize the family, build moral and spiritual character into the individual and his community, and provide intimate counsel on human problems."

community, and provide intimate counsel on human problems.

"At home and abroad, our churches, today are engaging in welfare work, both material and spiritual, which I believe will be a potent factor in building a just and enduring peace," Payne said.

"We must realize, however, that this Religion in American Life is a grass-roots matter; that each one of us must make it a personal obligation to see religion attain that plane in local living which is so vital to our individual well-being and that of our own community," Payne said.

MAGAZINE TELLS ABOUT MAINE'S POTATO INDUSTRY

In an article featured in its November issue The American Magazine discusses Maine's potato industry, especially that centered in Aroostook county which qualified for $45,000,000 in federal price-support funds last year.

The article, authored by Vance Packard, tells of the prosperity brought by bumper crops to northern Maine. It also deals with efforts being made by growers to increase the American consumption of potatoes, as well as to find other uses for their vast lands which are turning out record yields.

Illustrating the article is a photograph showing Gov. Frederick Payne crowning pretty Mickey Connett of Caribou, Potato Blossom Queen. In an effort to popularize potatoes growers are financing a nation-wide tour by her, as well as endeavoring to make food editors, food commentators, doctors and nutritionists more potato-conscious.

Packard talked to a good many growers and potato dealers while touring Aroostook county. Among them was Stan Wathen of the vast Nightingale Farms who was fearful that people might get a distorted notion from the $45,000,000 price-support payment.

"If you make $100,000, you can only keep $33,000," explained Wathen. "The rest goes in taxes. If you make $200,000, you can only keep $42,000. Actually, we are all becoming employees of the federal government."

In Auburn.

In accepting the Co-Chairmanship he said, "The USO deserves everybody's whole-hearted support. It operates the morale building Veterans Hospital Camp Shows which regularly visit Maine's Veterans Hospital at Togus, as well as the 120 other Service hospitals throughout the Nation. Besides financing Veterans Hospital Camp Shows, the newly reactivated USO operates 170 service clubs, 19 of which are overages, for the 1,000,000 boys and girls now in the Service."

An effective organization covering the entire State is fast being completed, and active campaigns will start in several counties Dec. 1.

O E S RECEPTION

Poem

The rays of our beautiful Eastern Star have led us here tonight

To honor Sister Ada, who guided by that light

Was chosen District Deputy Grand Matron of District number five.

To be our counselor, aid and friend. In these things she will strive.

The Brothers and Sisters of Purty Chapter in their hearts feel great pride.

That a Sister of our chapter—whom we've many meetings sat beside Should receive this worthy distinction and so greatly honored be.

She earned it by her devotion to our labors as you will see.

Sister Ada joined our order Oct. 2, 1940, at once she took a chair.

Became our star point, Martha. You could depend upon her to be there.

As Conductress she did the active work with beauty and with grace.

Twice she was Worthy Matron, three years held that honored place.

We chapters of this district—Oxford, Elmvale, Granite, Dwinall, and Evergreen

Monitor, Mount Zion, Jefferson, Keoka, and Purty all mean

To join with our new deputy to perfect our chapter work

To make her visits pleasant ones, no duties will we shirk.

On memories fond pages may this evening take its place

As one we laughed and talked together and may many a trace

Of this happiness go with us, fraternal bonds never sever.

May this Eastern Star reception honoring Ada bring happy memories ever.

KELLOGG, 'BIRD MAN' DIES AT CALIF. HOME

The following clipping from a Boston newspaper may be of interest to some of our readers who will recall Charles Dennison Kellogg as the builder, owner and proprietor of the Kellogg Nature Camps at North Newry some forty years ago.

MORGAN HILL, Calif., Sept. 5—Charles Kellogg, 80, who could imitate almost any bird and put out flames with his voice through a locked door, died last night at his ranch, "Ever Ever Land."

Kellogg's larynx had been declared more like a bird's than a human's. He could produce at will high frequency tones that would: Extinguish a two-foot gas flame. Start an automobile equipped with a sound sensitive starter 10 miles away with his radiocast voice.

A headliner in vaudeville days, he was reputed a $3,000 a week performer on the old Keith Orpheum circuit. But he was also a serious natural scientist. He was a friend of the late John Burroughs and John Muir, naturalists, and August Rodin, sculptor. But most of all, he was known as "The Bird Man," for his voice could be that of a plover, a Canadian snow goose, a canary, or even a kiwi.

I REMEMBER...

By THE OLD-TIMERS

From Mrs. S. A. Cramer of Drumright, Okla.: "I remember when Coxy's army went through our town en route to Washington. I saw them."

From Mrs. Charles F. Hirst of Scottsdale, Pa.: "I remember when we carried a horse chestnut in our pocket to keep rheumatism away (in your part of the country, Mr. Friendly, I believe the old-timers carried buckeyes in those days to keep Old Man Misy away. Am I right?)"

From Mrs. Oscar Tost of Reynoldsville, Pa.: "I remember when farmers would hitch their male or horse teams to wheelbarrows and drive them to the barn to get the hay baled. I remember when the hay was baled, the farmers would drive the hay bales to the barn and the hay would be baled. I remember when the hay was baled, the farmers would drive the hay bales to the barn and the hay would be baled."

From Mrs. John Chapman of Morgantown, W. Va.: "I remember her sleeping in a 'trundle bed' that my mother pulled out from under her bed."

From Mrs. Fred Huber of Los Angeles: "I remember the smart set of young ladies as they drove dairy wagons on early morning milk routes... when black satin bloomers and long ribbed underwear constituted a great part of the undergarments of the young ladies... when women wore lingerie called 'Teddy Bears'."

Successful Parenthood

BY MRS. CATHERINE CONRAD EDWARDS
Associate Editor, Parents' Magazine

DOES YOUR NINE-YEAR-OLD boy or girl seem less close to you, now that early childhood is being left behind? You may have been prepared for his being more independent and less affectionate, but why does he sometimes seem not so glad to be a member of your family?

A study of school age children made at Antioch college disclosed that many nine-year-olds ask themselves these same questions concerning their parents! Although they may squirm out of your embrace and balk at kissing, when you follow their lead in discarding demonstrative affection, it sets them wondering. Does Mother love me less because she doesn't hug me when we say good night? Does she love little sister more because sister sits on her lap?

The way out of this dilemma is to begin at five or six to find substitutes for the kind of fondling little children love, yet substitutes that carry with them a sense of love and pride and pleasure in your child. A pat on the back, a kiss blown up the staircase as a child starts up to bed, if invested with a deep sense of approval can take the place of hugs and kisses when these begin to embarrass a boy or girl. However, many youngsters put on a show of not liking the very kind of affection they crave from you—so don't discard petting until you are sure a child no longer needs this closeness.

Then, the Antioch study found out that a comparatively simple rejection bothered school children—that of having their questions unanswered. Parents are so patient with very young children—helping them identify a horse or a car or an airplane hundreds of times. But the school child's questions are too often brushed off, sometimes because cause parents are embarrassed by not knowing the answers, or because the questions are intimate. Are Mother and Dad no longer interested in me, don't they want to be bothered with me, the child asks himself.

For this problem we recommend the good old custom of consulting the dictionary or encyclopedia, but with Junior right at hand to catch the habit of looking up answers. Don't go off by yourself to bone up, trying to preserve a sense of parental infallibility—finding things out together is one of the surest ways of building companionship with your child.

But perhaps the most unexpected discovery made by the Antioch researchers is that nine-year-olds, despite their objections to parental restrictions really don't like too much freedom. Children often feel resentful of parents when they themselves have done things they later regret. Why didn't Mother keep me home the way Billy's mother did, the regretful child is apt to feel after a disappointing adventure.

What to do? This problem of how much freedom of decision to allow a child is at the core of all guidance, so we can't recommend any simple solution. But the beginning of wisdom lies surely in studying your child—does he show too little desire to act on his own? Then, he needs to be encouraged to break away from your guiding hand. Does he have an independent mind which usually displays good judgment? Then let him set the rate at which he decides things for himself. Is he too adventurous, and a bit rash and thoughtless about what he attempts to do? Then, see that he has stricter supervision even if he doesn't like it.

After all, parents must provide the balance wheel.

* Enemies Into Friends *

by Dr. Norman Vincent Peale

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peale is minister of historic Marble Collegiate Church on Fifth Avenue, New York City; and author of the best seller, "A Guide to Confident Living.")

In an Ohio town sometime ago a group of long-time friends was discussing a well-known political figure who was prominent in the politics of the Buckeye State in his boyhood days. Across the intervening years I clearly remember him. He had a lovable and attractive personality. He was an enormous man physically and was very religious. I can see him yet moving down the aisle of the church where he was the head usher. He moved with a certain dignity that was unforgettable.

There was many a story about him. One of these I remember distinctly. It had to do with a young man who had political ambitions. He did not have the gift of understanding the character of the older man. He was not quite philosophical enough. There was no kindly give and take in his makeup. He was bludgeoning his way, so he thought, to the top and as a result was experiencing rather stiff opposition. He rubbed people the wrong way, thus creating a great many enemies. On one occasion he was talking with the older man and complained about these enemies. With all-concealed ardor he told the more experienced politician what he intended to do to these enemies, how he was going to crush them.

The older man was kindly and tolerant and said, "Son, I would not do that if I were you. That will not get you anywhere. You do not want to make a lot of enemies."

"Well," said the boy, "I already have a lot of them. What can I do about them?"

The older man answered, "I will give you a little suggestion about how to handle an enemy. There is only one thing to do with an enemy, only one, and that is to make a friend of him. You cannot afford the luxury of even one enemy if it can be avoided."

"But how can you turn an enemy into a friend?"

"Son, I have a little trick about that and it works like a charm. It will work for you, too. Here it is, 'Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them that despitefully use you.'"

Then, with a twinkle in his eye he asked, "Do you recognize the source of that quotation?"

Of course, a preacher would be expected to say that, but coming from an astute, world-wise politician, it carries considerably more weight.

The Biblical text quoted by the old politician is absolutely practical. Apply it in your home and take it to your business tomorrow. If you apply it, keep applying it, and learn more about the use of it, you can turn your enemies into friends.

If, in dealing with people who treat you badly, you do not retaliate in kind but try to build up that fine something within them for which they are blindly reaching, you will turn them from enemies into friends, because you are doing the finest thing for them. In so doing you will satisfy their craving to be appreciated, and ultimately they will come to love you. You have to be somewhat of a personality to do this, but I am assuming that you are such, and besides, you have Almighty God to help you. "Bless them that curse you; do good to them that hate..."

It is so simple. Your enemies are being childish, and all that they want is your esteem and your regard. If you give them back curses for curses, hate for hate, they will not like you, but they will come to like you if you bless them.

EMERSON'S NEW ENGLAND PICTURES AT GOULD

Gould Academy has arranged to show Emerson's New England, a photographic exhibition prepared by the editors of Life Magazine, beginning Nov. 1 and continuing through Nov. 15.

Based on the photographic essay, New England Indian Summer, Emerson's New England deals with places and place-names especially associated with Emerson, Thoreau, Hawthorne, Alcott and Longfellow. The exhibition is composed of 25 panels, 20 x 28 inches, and opens with photographs of Concord and of the exterior and interiors of houses there such as the Old Manse and Wayside. The panels move then to Walden, to Brook Farm; to Haverhill, to Cambridge and Boston; then back again to close with the open air of Concord and Concord River.

The text, exclusive of identifying captions, is almost entirely composed of excerpts taken from the 18th century New England writers themselves. There is no "criticism" or descriptive material, but simply quotations—mostly from the journals of Hawthorne, Alcott and Emerson—which are relevant to the subject matter of the photographs.

The LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

Funny as it sounds, new stuff is old stuff—most of it. Take the shepherd boy hollering wolf when there was no wolf. Then take the Govt. Bureau Boys today who yell that "chaos is around the corner" or "disaster lurks." If congress does not ante another 100 million to fix some cooked-up problem, Chaos and Disaster—brothers and sisters—there you have 2 words that agitate me, no end.

And like it was when the farmers rushed in with pitchforks to slay the phony wolf, congress now rushes in with the key to the U. S. Treasury.

For a long spell now, a topic for one of these learned essays, now and then, has been "Aesop." If a congressman cannot tell a patriot from a confidence-man—a sheep from a sharper—it means there is something wrong in our school houses, colleges, and universities. They teach you there the rumba, the social sciences, but they neglect the foundation. Horse sense is becoming obsolete.

So you college presidents and school superintendents—do us citizens a good turn—put Aesop into all curriculums, up to and including the PhD.

Yours with the low down,
